St Albans fly-tipping on the rise

By Michael Knowles
Reporter

JUST 13 people have been successfully prosecuted for fly-tipping in the district of St Albans in the last three years – despite a rise in rubbish being dumped.

St Albans District Council is having to spend £40,000 a year to remove some of the illegally dumped rubbish.

In the district, 863 fly tips were cleared by the council's contractor in the year from June 2014 to May 2015.

From June 2014 to May 2015 the monthly total of fly-tipping incidents varied from 52 to 95.

The council may introduce penalties for vehicles carrying waste if they do not have the correct licence. It hopes this will tackle the problem of fly-tipping.

Cllr Daniel Chichester-Miles, portfolio holder for the environment for St Albans City and District Council, said: "Fly-tipping is a selfish and environmentally harmful offence that this council can and will crack down on.

"That is shown by the fact that together with the police we are successfully prosecuting offenders. Those who are involved get criminal records as a result.

"We are pursuing a range of other initiatives to deter fly tippers. We are also looking to engage residents who can help us by reporting incidents and providing other information."

Grill batters their chip shop rivals

A restaurant chain has been claimed a national award at the 2016 National Fish and Chip Awards.

Lussmans Fish and Grill Restaurants, which has outlets in Leyton Road, Harpenden and High Street, St Albans, won the Best Foodservice Operator Award.

Judges assessed the cooking and preparation of the food, the relationships with suppliers, customer service and the development of the restaurant's menus.

Commenting on their award win after receiving the trophy from awards host, Nigel Barden, voice of food and drink on BBC Radio 2, restaurant chain director Andrei Lussmann said: "This is the first time we've entered the awards so we're overwhelmed to be winners; it's an honour to be recognised and appreciated for our hard work."

The awards, dubbed the Oscars of the fish frying industry, recognise the country's best.
